FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The domain name ECCOSKO.EU was registered on December 29, 2011.

The Complainant, ECCO Sko A/S, is a well-known manufacturer of shoes, bags, belts and shoe care products, founded in 1963. Complainant's net turnover in 2010 was DKK 6.111 millions. Complainant has a total workforce worldwide of approximately 17.500 employees. Complainant is the owner of the trademark ECCO registered in several jurisdictions worldwide, inter alia the following:

A. COMPLAINANT

Complainant asserts that the first and most distinctive part of the disputed domain name consists of the Complainant's trademark ECCO. Furthermore, the domain name contains the generic and descriptive term SKO, meaning "shoe(s)" in Danish/Norwegian/Swedish, which is also part of the company name of the Complainant. The disputed domain name is therefore confusingly similar to the Complainant's trademark ECCO, registered as CTM and national trademark worldwide, and identical to the Complainant's company name, which is protected under Danish law. The disputed domain name is displaying the ECCO logo, registered in several countries worldwide, as well as pictures taken from some past versions of the ECCO.COM official website, thus enhancing the risk of confusion / likelihood of association with the Complainant's trademark. All in all, the domain name will be perceived as a reference to the official website of the Complainant or a website selling ECCO shoes.

Further the Complainant asserts that the Respondent can hardly be known under the name ECCO. Due to Complainant's long-standing use of the trademark ECCO for "shoes", "leather goods" and other goods and services in many countries worldwide, Complainant finds that Respondent cannot have any legitimate rights in the disputed domain name. Respondent is neither an authorized dealer of Complainant's products, nor has the trademark ECCO otherwise been licensed to Respondent. Accordingly, Respondent has no rights or legitimate interests in respect of the disputed domain name. It is made evident by the fact that Complainant's trademark has such a prominent place in the disputed domain name that Respondent is intentionally attempting to attract, for commercial gain, Internet users to his web site, by creating a likelihood of confusion with Complainant's trademark ECCO and company name ECCO Sko.

The risk of confusion/association is enhanced by the Respondent's unauthorized use of the Complainant's logo and pictures taken from past versions of the Complainant's official website ECCO.COM. In addition, the Respondent is using his website to sell fake ECCO shoes. As a matter of fact, it is not even possible to compare the original ECCO shoes with the models displayed on the Respondent's homepage, as there is no correspondence or similarity whatsoever; the only thing that the shoes shown on the Respondent's homepage have in common with the Complainant's products is the trademark ECCO. The sale of poor quality (fake) shoes under the trademark ECCO on a poor quality e-commerce platform is indeed liable of causing a very big harm to the image of the Complainant and the repute of his brand.

The Respondent did not file a response, timely or otherwise, despite a reminder.

DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

To succeed in its Complaint, the Complainant must show that the requirements of Article 21(1) of the Commission Regulation (EC) No. 874/2004 have been complied with. That paragraph reads as follows:

"A registered domain name shall be subject to revocation, using an appropriate extra-judicial or judicial procedure, where that name is identical or confusingly similar to a name in respect of which a right is recognized or established by national and/or Community law, such as the rights mentioned in Article 10(1), and where it:

- (a) has been registered by its holder without rights or legitimate interest in the name; or
- (b) has been registered or is being used in bad faith."

In addition, Article 22(10) of the Regulation and Paragraph B10(a) of the ADR rules provide that:

"In the event that a Party does not comply with any of the time periods established by these ADR Rules or the Panel, the Panel shall proceed to a decision on the Complaint and may consider this failure to comply as grounds to accept the claims of the other Party".

The Complainant has provided sufficient evidence that it is the proprietor of numerous trade mark registrations for the ECCO, covering, among other things, "shoes", and which were registered before the contested domain name. Further, the Complainant has enforceable rights based on the company name "ECCO SKO A/S", which translates "ECCO SHOES A/S". The "A/S" element is an abbreviation of "Aktieselskab", a type of Danish company, similar to "Inc."

The domain name ECCOSKO.EU is a combination of the ECCO trademark and the generic word SKO, which is Danish and Swedish for the word "shoes".

This Panel is of the opinion that, as previously considered in numerous decisions, the addition in a domain name of a generic, descriptive and/or geographic term to a trademark, is not sufficient to avoid confusion. See, e.g. ADR Case No. 05546 Alkostore.eu: "Adding a generic and non-distinctive element to a protected name does not remove or indeed even lessen the confusing similarity between the disputed domain name and the Complainant's registered rights, but rather informs the internet user that the website where the disputed domain name points is a place where the products [...] are for sale". Further, the domain name is identical to the Complainant's company name, but for the functional "A/S" suffix. The Complainant has, therefore, satisfied the requirements of the first paragraph of Article 21(1).

The Complainant has asserted that the Respondent is not known by the name and does not hold any exclusive rights or rights of any nature to the Domain name. Complainant has further asserted that Respondent is neither an authorized dealer of Complainant's products, nor has the trademark ECCO otherwise been licensed to Respondent. The domain name is being used for a website which allegedly is selling counterfeit shoes.

These assertions are not contradicted by the Respondent. Should the Respondent have rights or legitimate interests in the domain name, the Panel assumes that it would have advised the Panel of the same. As no response was filed, the Panel therefore accepts that the Respondent does not have rights or legitimate interests in the contested domain name.

In the absence of any submission on the issue from the Respondent, the Complainant has satisfied the requirements of Article 21(1)(a). It is not necessary to make an assessment of bad faith under Article 21(1)(b).

DECISION

For all the foregoing reasons, in accordance with Paragraphs B12 (b) and (c) of the Rules, the Panel orders that the domain name ECCOSKO be transferred to the Complainant.
